No more software needed

The idea is this, once you have AI agents then you don't need to make software anymore for humans but just for agents. If you want to book a holiday to Hawai then you let the AI agents send you pictures, reviews from people etcetera such that you can decide which flights to take, where to sleep, what to eat, and what activities to do and buy the tickets as well.

Some interesting things that are happening in the software world. For instance the stock price of Adobe plummeted 30% from the start of 2026 until Octobre 2026. However, but they had the best quarter in its history looking at revenue

Bet 2: AI cannot pay back what it borrowed from investors
